“The Living Culprit” - an environmental documentary film produced under the banner of Seujee Dharanee-the green earth, Assam in association with Pragjyotish School Society, Guwahati. This 37-minute-long sensitizing and thought-provoking film has been directed by Satya Ranjan Borah, a young and energetic environmental activist cum-filmmaker.

Now, the film has been selected for “Film Festival: Green Unplugged” – initiated by Culture Unplugged Festival Team which consists of members from four countries New Zealand, USA, India and Indonesia. The film - “The Living Culprit” is being screened and available for global audience at the festival website. This is the only film selected for the global festival by any Assamese Director as informed by Mr. Nabin one of the members of the festival.
