Undeterred by a scorching heat people thronged in thousands at the Latashil Playground on Tuesday and participated in a protest rally organized by the All Assam Students Union to take a solemn vow to end terrorism. These people were taking out a procession on the city streets to send a strong message against the terrorist forces who have been mongering troubles for years. With banners in their hands, they shouted slogans against the terrorist and also against the Bangladeshi immigrants residing in the state saying them the mother of all troubles. Notably, hundreds of people are coming even from the outskirts of the city by bus to participate in the rally. The death of over eighty people in the serial blast on recent in the state has made these people shudder to think that its high for an united stand against the terrorists.
