All banks across Assam along with the other parts of the country are heavily busy with responding to the customers who have been making long queue to change the Rs 500 and Rs 1000 demoninatioos following the RBI

(/taxonomy/term/1695) directives.

Customers thronged in thousands in the bank premises from early in the morning to get their demonitions changed from Thursday. In many places the bank officials found (/taxonomy/term/1802) it difficult to function normally in the face of the irate customers who clashed with each other.

“We are busy with the task of changing the demonitions. We have to complete it within a next couple of days. But we find it difficult. A section of the customers lacks patience and have clashed with each other disrupting the normal (/taxonomy/term/2062) functionings,” said a SBI (/taxonomy/term/2463) official in Dispur.

Bank officials in many places have deployed security forces to bring the situation under control.

Notably, the Reserve Bank of India (/taxonomy/term/2367) has asked the customers to get their Rs 500 and Rs 1000 demoniations changed by December 30.
