A BBC report exposing the “extra judicial killings” inside the Kaziranga National Park in Assam touches off a seismic wave of anger in forest and environment ministry who demands action against the reporter and producer.

A rattled National Tiger Conservation Authority has threatened legal action alleging it an attempt to create a wrong impression on the one horn rhino abode.

NCTA has further moved the UK \(/taxonomy/term/1766\) embassy seeking action against \(/taxonomy/term/1929\) the journalists who in a recent report focused the Inhuman activities of the forest guards \(/taxonomy/term/2185\) for conserving the one horn animal \(/taxonomy/term/2081\) where the neighbouring people have been bearing the brunt.

BBC sources, however, have justified the story and suggested the authorities to go through the story in toto.
