

LATEST NEWS

Holi celebrated at Tangla

Shajid Khan · 17:35, 24 Mar 2016 · 11079 views · 1 min read

With the rest of the state (</taxonomy/term/2332>) Holi, the festival of colours, was celebrated (</taxonomy/term/2092>) with all the traditional mirth and religious fervour in the town on Wednesday and Thursday.

People cutting across age, caste, community (/taxonomy/term/2084) and faith took part in the festivities that evoke a feeling of camaraderie and bonding. Citizens also visited temples and community (/taxonomy/term/2084) prayer halls and sought the blessings of the Divine so that good prevails over (/taxonomy/term/2166) evil. Community (/taxonomy/term/2084) celebrations also marked the occasion.

Holi revellers were also seen descending on the roads (/taxonomy/term/2454) and streets in their hordes and lending a carefree ambience to the celebrations. The more enthusiasts were seen honking horns and speeding past in bikes. Young children with their dresses smeared and drenched in Holi colours presented a lovely picture.

The colours of the festival generated an ambience of good will and people participated in different functions that were held on the occasion. The citizens celebrated (/taxonomy/term/2092) Holi with great enthusiasm and gaiety and joined friends and family members in playing with colours.

Shajid Khan

Recipient of The Annual Colosseum Awards 2014 & 2015 (by The Assam Tribune group), Shajid Khan is an Independent journalist based in Assam. He has contributed numerous political, socio-political stories for bountiful national, international as well as Assam based publications including The New York Times, Firstpost, The Telegraph. He also pens down analytic commentary on print and web based publications.

Original URL: <https://assamtimes.org/article/holi-celebrated-at-tangla-16579> | Published: 24 March 2016 | © 2026 Assam Times